The Ethos of Me

➢ Being a father and a husband are my favorite and most important titles ➢ Add value to others in everything that I do o Family, friends, clients, peers, strangers o Find a way to positively impact others and reputation will build positively ➢ Mentality matters – stay positive o Strive for happiness as often as possible, but understanding that constant happiness is unattainable o Feelings and emotions are human, embrace them and work to move out of the “negative” emotions as soon as possible ➢ Be careful not to sacrifice too much happiness, time, etc. in the short term for the self-promise of future benefits. Tomorrow is never guaranteed. Certain sacrifices are worth it and okay, but need to aware of the risk being taken.
➢ Time is my most valuable resource – guard it closely ➢ Know who I want to become and know that it takes sacrifice and hard work to get there o No easy day, grow and learn every day o Live the American Dream as an entrepreneur ➢ Perseverance, resilience, and mental toughness are critical o How I pick myself up from defeat and disappointment is how I ultimately will create sustainable success ➢ Systematize and create processes wherever possible o Systems and repeatable processes are the leverage needed to scale in any area of life o Keep these processes as simple as possible (Occam’s Razor) – the easier it is the more people will be able to follow and implement quickly ➢ Take massive action – progress comes from action only ➢ Consume knowledge voraciously – tapping into another’s mind through different content is one of the best ways to rapidly grow o Books, podcasts, articles, memos, periodicals o Take notes to reference this material repeatedly (Roam Research) o Knowledge is only powerful if utilized and applied ➢ Constant and never-ending improvement (CANI) o Growth in mind, body, and spirit always ➢ Continuous excitement about expanding knowledge and learning something new – I am a constantly expanding and changing person – the person I am today will change because of what I have learned and how I have applied it ➢ Physical health is critically important o Exercise and stretching to help release stress and keep the vessel in the best shape possible o Longevity is dependent on guarding health ➢ Extreme ownership – responsibility stops with the me o Applicable in family, business, health, and life in general o Take ownership in everything where responsibility should fall with me, or even areas it does not ➢ Cultivate friendships and relationships frequently and abundantly o Be outgoing and personal, make the effort to reach out and stay in contact o Be the glue of the relationship o Most people lose 5-10% of their friends a year, go the opposite direction and expand friendships by this much ➢ Do things that are memorable for myself and others that leaves an impression o Misogi and challenges o Personal gifts and messages o Work to differentiate myself from others if for nothing else to offer a unique experience for others ➢ Wealth is important – strive for great wealth in all areas of life – not for status or outside perception – but for the security, flexibility, and duration outstanding wealth can bring
